

“The EDF Finance Graduate Scheme is a great fit for me as completing three different placements within the business allows me to gain a range of experience and expand my network early on. Being supported through my CIMA studies was another attraction, and this will help provide an array of opportunities for me in my career.”

Rory Gibb – Nuclear Operations Finance Graduate

What experience will I gain during the Finance programme?

During your training you'll complete three placements over three years. These assignments will offer the opportunity to experience roles in the context of Operational Generation Assets, such as power stations, all the way through to the Sale of Energy to residential and business customers.

Studying for CIMA (Chartered Institute of Management Accountants)

Our CIMA courses are provided by Kaplan, who offer flexible ways to study via in-person classroom sessions and online learning. Kaplan offer Tutor support 7 days a week and hundreds of practice questions.

As well as covering the cost of your studies, and all additional expenses, we provide a generous amount of study and exam leave. You'll also be allocated a 'Buddy' and a Career Manager who will provide further support and advice as you progress through your studies.

What kind of placements will I complete?

The programme is designed to help you develop a broad set of skills, with the opportunity to experience Finance teams across our diverse business.

Following an induction with graduates from all our schemes in September, you'll head straight to your first placement.

The rotational nature of the scheme means you'll spend a year in each placement (3 years in total), building up a good knowledge of that area before moving on to another unique opportunity. You'll complete placements either within our Customer Supply business, Nuclear Operations business or our Corporate team, working on real-world projects and impacting commercial business decisions from day one.

Wherever you go, you can expect real work from the word go - including forecasting and budgeting activities, examining operating costs, getting involved in major projects and preparing reports for senior leadership.

As well as the 'on the role' finance training, you'll also complete a formal Professional Skills Training programme. This includes training in Communication and Commercial Awareness skills, Presenting with Confidence, Influencing and Negotiating, as well as other Leadership and Project Management skills.

“The EDF Finance programme was attractive because of the focus on CIMA, which I knew was a better fit for me than ACA/ACCA. The placements were also really appealing as they allow you to build a wide network relatively early on in your career, as well as giving you the opportunity to learn about various different parts of EDF.”
